

The Olga Lengyel Institute for Holocaust Studies and Human Rights

Looking Beyond the Single Story in Holocaust and Human Rights Education

Summer Seminar for Middle, High School, and College Educators

Charlotte, North Carolina

July 16 – 21, 2018

An Interdisciplinary Inquiry on Teaching the Holocaust

Supporting the work of teachers in Holocaust, Social Justice, and Human Rights education.

Join us this summer as we inquire into new ways to address Holocaust Studies, collaborate on effective teaching methods, and take time to enjoy each other's company.

"I tell my story so that they might tell the next generation."

Seminar Highlights

Held at the Stan Greenspon Center for Peace and Social Justice at Queens University, each day includes sessions that will introduce new perspectives on our theme. We will learn, collaborate, write, and reflect. Most importantly, you will experience concrete ways to bring your learning back to your students. The seminar includes:

- Two-day intensive training on the use of iWitness
- Trip to the Harvey Gantt Center for African-American Art + Culture
- Full-day experience at Temple Beth El at Shalom Park
- Exploration of the UN Declaration of Human Rights
- Participation in the Butterfly Project with a Holocaust survivor

This seminar is offered FREE to participants through the generous support of our partners and offers participants:

- 3 Professional Development CEU credits
- Most meals
- Discounted single or double occupancy accommodations at Queens University for out-of-town participants
- Free educational resources presented in seminar sessions

The seminar will be led by experienced facilitators Donna
Tarney, Charlotte Catholic High School, and Tonya Wertz-Orbaugh, University of North Carolina at Charlotte.
