Teaching the Holocaust for Social Justice

An interdisciplinary inquiry into teaching the Holocaust as a way to reach broader goals of social justice in today's classroom

June 17 – 21, 2019

Albuquerque, New Mexico

For Teachers of Grades 6 and Up

The 5-day Summer Seminar is intended to help teachers develop meaningful ways to teach about the Holocaust and other events involving intolerance and persecution. The program will include survivor testimony, an introduction to Jewish life and culture, lectures by well-known scholars, the Echoes and Reflections curriculum, and digital resources designed to balance a teacher's need for content knowledge with student needs and district outcomes.

Teachers will visit the Holocaust and Intolerance Museum of New Mexico in Albuquerque. The seminar will also focus on specific social justice issues connected to teaching and learning in New Mexico.

Comments from past seminar participants:

"Beyond my expectations—in 5 days I received tools, resources, lessons, and materials beyond what I could locate in 5 years on my own."

"This program was wonderful and definitely timely for what is happening in our world today."

"The presenters, materials, activities, and participants were exceptional. I appreciate how well-organized and thought-out this training was."

"Easily the best conference I ever attended."

"I now have a solid background so that I can thoughtfully design an empathy-based social justice curriculum geared toward young people."
