

Pathways for Teaching the Holocaust and Social Justice

Summer Seminar, Cincinnati, Ohio July 17-22, 2017

Date: July 17-22, 2017

Location: The Summit Country Day School, Cincinnati, Ohio

Co-Facilitators: Sue Fletcher and Rosie Sansalone

Pathways for Teaching the Holocaust and Social Justice is an interactive seminar for educators teaching about the Holocaust, other genocides, and issues of social injustice. Using writing as a medium for teaching this often difficult material is a core focus. Participants will engage with primary sources and other thought-provoking instructional materials geared to help them make meaningful connections between the Holocaust, more recent genocides, and the civil rights issues currently facing our nation. This is a unique and personally enriching professional development experience.

Speakers will include:

Dr. Danny Cohen, discussion of his book Train and the concept of Overlapping Triangles and the Holocaust | testimonies by Holocaust survivors | Carl Wilkens, author of I'm Not Leaving, on The Tutsi Genocide in Rwanda | Tutsi Genocide survivor, Eugenie Mukeshimana | Rabbi Miriam Terlinchamp on Jewish faith and culture | ADL's Echoes and Reflections Training AND many others...

Participants receive

- Free housing at Xavier University if traveling from a distance
- Meals each day for all participants
- Selected books and materials

Participants visit

- The Center for Holocaust and Humanity Education
- The Underground Railroad Freedom Center
- The Islamic Center of Greater Cincinnati
- Temple Shalom

For more information contact:

Sue Fletcher: 740-590-3390
suefletcher5@gmail.com
Apply by MAY 15 Deadline:

<https://www.thememoriallibrary.org/ohio-application/>