Looking Toward the Future: Bringing Lessons of the Holocaust to the Gulf South

An Interdisciplinary Inquiry on Teaching the Holocaust

Baton Rouge, Louisiana

July 5 – 11, 2020

Looking Toward the Future is a seminar for educators at all levels desiring to deepen their understanding of the Holocaust. Through this investigative seminar, attendees will be challenged to think about ways to promote human rights and social justice in their classrooms. Seminar highlights include:

- Professional artist Angel McGee
- Site visit to the National WWII Museum in New Orleans
- Holocaust survivor testimony
- Shabbat service
- Guest presenters
- Introduction to Echoes and Reflections curriculum

This seminar is offered FREE to educators through the generous support of TOLI and our partners.

Eligible educators will receive:

- Most meals/snacks
- Books and other teaching materials
- Professional Development credit
- Limited housing subsidies available for out-of-town participants. Contact leaders for more information.

The seminar is facilitated by Penny Kinchen and Jerrilynn Miller.

Penny Kinchen is the English Department Chair at Central Private School in Baton Rouge, Louisiana. She has taught composition and literature there for 19 years.

Jerrilynn Miller is an 18-year teacher at Monsignor Kelly Catholic High School in Beaumont, Texas. She began teaching the Holocaust in 2004.
