July 13-17, 2026 Philadelphia, Pennsylvania

About TOLI Seminars

TOLI is regarded as a leader in providing professional learning seminars for educators on best practices to teach about the Holocaust and human rights. Seminars, including most meals, are provided at no cost to educators.

Participants become part of TOLI's international learning community and are provided with year-round mentoring, programs, and resources.

Who Should Attend

- Middle and High School Teachers from all disciplines – especially social studies, history, and English/language arts
- College Faculty
- Those who seek to deepen their knowledge, skills, and confidence to teach challenging content

Program Benefits

During the 250th anniversary of our nation's founding:

- Visit the National Constitution Center
- Visit the Independence National Historical Park
- Learn how to teach using artifacts from a child of a Holocaust survivor
- Strengthen your teaching through collaboration, exploring best practices and tackling real classroom challenges alongside fellow educators in a supportive learning community

About the Program

Come to Philadelphia and explore how the printed word, film, and images impact Holocaust education, identity formation, and cultural appreciation. Investigate how language and visual communication can be used to inform or misinform. Access unique museum collections and wrestle with how the choice of language and images is never neutral.

Seminar Facilitators

Matthew Good is the Instructional Technology Librarian at Ursinus College in Pennsylvania and the librarian for the Educators' Institute for Human Rights (EIHR) where he evaluates and curates resources on genocide and mass atrocities. Kimberly Jones is a high school English and humanities teacher at Chapel Hill High School, where her teaching sparks critical conversations on history, identity, and justice. She is also a PBS education consultant where she designs culturally relevant lessons. Jennifer Lemberg is a Holocaust educator and editor of Becoming a Holocaust Educator: Purposeful Pedagogy through Inquiry. Read their full biographies on our website below:
